PROFILE

Dennis Corpuz is one of the most promising upcoming underwater photographers, recently winning the prestigious international photo contest - 'The Ocean Art'.

With less than two years of professional experience in his digital underwater photography career, he has already won several awards in the international arena including 'The international Abyss in Italy' and 'The Asia Pacific UW Photo Challenge'. In addition, he is also two time champion in the macro photography competition organized by the Philippines Department of Tourism in Anilao, in both the compact and DSLR category.

Few years ago, Dennis developed a website called 'anilaocritters.com' which became his photo library online. It's aim was to discover and share with the world the most exotic underwater creatures found in Anilao. Through his images, Dennis also helps extend the message of marine conservation and educates people on how to preserve the natural underwater environment.

Dennis now separates his time between organizing dive trips and helping all underwater macro photography enthusiasts interested in expanding their knowledge and enhancing their talent reach their full potential.
